

Opening Date of Recreation Center Uncertain

What do students of 1940 and 1986 have in common? They both eagerly awaited the opening of an athletic center.

Both the fieldhouse and the recreation center have had delays in construction. The fieldhouse was scheduled to open on December 11, 1940; however, it was not dedicated until December 8, 1941—almost one year later.

Mayor Conrad Kellner, J. Henry Hipkind, then Alumni Association President, and Bishop Noll from Fort Wayne were on hand for the dedication.

Two thousand is the seating capacity of the fieldhouse, which still serves as the site of varsity basketball and volleyball games.

Last year a student survey regarding recreation on campus was distributed around campus.

It showed boredom was the number one complaint. A recreational center was proposed and the majority of students voted in favor of it. They answered questions regarding what type of activities they wanted the center to house and what hours it should be opened. Construction began last spring.

Covered walkways will connect the rec center to both Raleigh Hall and the fieldhouse, thus protecting students from the weather.

Included in the rec center are courts for basketball, volleyball, tennis, and raquetball. An indoor track surrounds the courts. Student lounges and spacious locker rooms are also included in the building.

"We'll still use the old gym for basketball and volleyball. Intramurals will also be played there," Athletic Director Bill Hogan commented.

Plans are for the rec center to be open 16 hours a day. Twelve of those hours will be for student use only; in addition to this four hours will be shared by students and athletic teams. The fieldhouse is still mainly for athletes.

"We haven't settled cost yet, because of labor changes," maintenance manager Fred Plant adds, "The only major change was the drainage ditch. We had to enlarge it by 3200 feet. We should have it finished by now."

Students were told the rec center would be finished by September 4; however, the fliers students received from Athletic Director Bill Hogan said the opening will be November 1.

Construction on the rec center began in the later part of April. Originally, the completion date was set for early September, but because of problems that deadline has been pushed back twice.

EXTRA, EXTRA READ ALL ABOUT IT

STUFF celebrates fifty years of publication! Look for the new mastheads from past issues. The one featured this week is from the very first issue of STUFF, October 1, 1937. Also look for articles from the first five years of publication.

We at STUFF think celebrating fifty years of publication is important, not only because we get to pat ourselves on the back, but to let students know what STUFF is all about.

First, STUFF is compiled BY students FOR students. Students write the stories, the student editors edit them, and the staff puts them together to make the final project you read. All of the students who have ever worked on STUFF, past and present deserve some credit. They have worked hard for your benefit. In Core 9 seniors are learning about how easy it is for people to be selfish. Any student who helped on the newspaper proves that they are not selfish simply because it takes a lot of time and effort to put out just one issue of the paper. Just imagine how much time and effort it has taken to produce fifty years of STUFF!

Second, STUFF is the perfect way to get your student opinions voiced. Letters to the editor are always welcome. Letters to the editor are one way of getting something done on campus. Pose a question you've been dying to get answered and the staff can investigate it and hopefully print what you want to know. What better way to get your point across to people than to have it put in print, where everyone can read it?

Third, in order for STUFF to continue, we must have your input. It is a newspaper for the students. That cannot be emphasized enough. If you have any ideas or questions, contact us in our office in room 100 of the Chapel basement and we will try to track down the answers for you.

Throughout the year STUFF will be doing some unusual features focusing on the fiftieth celebration. If things seem a little different it is because we are trying to make it different as we celebrate our 50th year of publication.

New Faces; Familiar Faces

With the beginning of yet another school year comes the addition of new faculty members. This year STUFF welcomes four teachers who just arrived on campus and also remembers some teachers who have been around for a few years.

Among the new faculty members this year is Sister Donna Liette, a member of the Precious Blood Sisters. She teaches Core I, is the Associate Director of Campus Ministry and an adult resident in Justin Hall.

A couple of hours a day are needed to pray and dream for her and she believes everyone should "launch a dream."

Sister Donna's heart has been in Rensselaer for 20 years. She taught at St. Augustine's Catholic elementary school and collaborated with St. Joe education in 1966. She commented, "I believe that all people have special gifts and I like helping them bring them to life."

Walt Walker is not only the new professor of management, sales and advertising, but also an outgoing and carefree person. His philosophy is "Work with me because I work with you."

Originally from Chicago, Mr. Walker did his undergraduate work at St. Joe and graduate work at Indiana University. He has taught sales training programs.

Among his interests are football, tennis, minorities in business, and being a "big brother." He notes, "St. Joe offered me a new beginning. It holds a warm spot in my heart."

Father Earnie Krantz teaches Core I, a theology course, and is involved with Campus Ministry. He was a brother a few years before he decided to become a priest. He has taught adult education, scripture seminars, and study groups; plus he worked with a psychotherapist in counseling.

He did more college work at St. Joe in 1970 and he feels there is quite a contrast between then and now. "I am really impressed with the interest of the students in the campus," he said. He also feels the smallness is good for the school. There is a different attitude and sense about belonging.

Dr. James Temple is the new faculty member in the psychology department. Growing up in California, he attended Riverside College and the University of California in Santa Cruz. He taught for 10 years in California.

Social influence, applied work in energy conservation, and psychotherapy are some of his interest. "The balance of research and teaching at St. Joe was exactly what I was trying to find; a school concerned in

SJC Accepts Change

Two members of the Huffy Bicycle Corporation gave a seminar to faculty members and freshmen leaders at the beginning of the school year. The one point they stressed the most is that you must be willing to change in order to be a success. If that is the case, then Saint Joseph's must be on the right track.

Over the summer crews worked to change the appearance of the campus in several ways. The first noticeable change was the building of the recreation center. Since it was in the beginning stages at the end of the school year, it did not look much like a building. Upon returning to campus, however the new building catches everyone's eye. It sticks out because it is such a new building.

Secondly, new windows have been put in several dorms. Seifert was the first to get them. This was done not only to prevent students from breaking the windows, but for energy conservation as well. One student living in Seifert claims the residents have a much better attitude about living there this year. They appreciate what improvements were made and show it by not trashing the dorm.

Aquinas, Bennett, Merlini, and Noll also received new windows. Aquinas and Merlini have the same kind as Seifert. Bennett and Noll now have kol-wall windows. They reduce the amount of glass exposure and add to energy efficiency. Light can penetrate through the glass; however, students cannot see through the glass.

Crews put new doors in Merlini for the two fire escapes that were added. Bennett and Noll also had new doors put on.

By the end of the month, the school will be notified by the Department of Education as to whether or not they received more funding for next year. If the funding is approved, then next year crews will be working on Gallagher and Halas improvements. All the dorms could not be worked on this year obviously because of the cost of the work. The approximate cost of all the improvements around campus this summer is $744,000. The school took out a low interest loan from the federal government to pay for the improvements. It will be repaid with the three percent interest through money received from the campaign fund.

These changes not only make the campus look nicer, they reduce the cost of running the college. More money can be put to better uses, such as adding new classes, getting new books in the library, or any of one hundred other things.

By improving the looks of the campus and making it more efficient, the administration has taken one big step forward. They are no longer looking to the past for answers. They are taking the initiative to accept the fact that this school must change in order to continue being a success. Moreover, they have not only accepted this fact, they have acted upon it.

Letter To The Editor

Administrative Apathy Shines Through

Dear editor,

"St. Joe's is boring. St. Joe is a drag. What's there to do? I'm going home this weekend." Sound familiar? I hear remarks like this all the time, in every dorm. Funny, one wouldn't think a college like ours would be this way. I mean, St. Joe is people — people living together in a family type atmosphere, working together and experiencing all aspects of life together. It should be fun ... exciting.

Well, sorry to blow this wonderful facade all to hell, but it is not. St. Joe is a drag — nothing exciting happens here, nothing new happens here ... just the same old limited events. And why is that, one may ask? Well, the administration would say it's due to student apathy. We, as students, are just too lazy and uninterested to think of and put into action any new, exciting events. It's all our fault — see?

Well, I for one see nothing of the sort. In fact, what I see is quite the opposite. The administration of St. Joseph's College is a stagnant, sinking body of apathetic weight that seems to have no desire whatsoever to make St. Joe's the intellectual, cultural and familial institution it dramatizes in its brochures.

Take for instance a proposal last year by the special events committee to start a campus-wide game of "Assassination tag." Before this proposal could even be brought up for vote in the committee, the administration vetoed it on the grounds that it promoted war and negative feelings. Who says? Did administration ever ask the students if they thought it would promote these feelings? No — which is why none of you ever knew a game such as this was proposed in the first place. You, as the student body, weren't given a chance to voice your opinion; a chance to do something new and different here at St. Joe's ... chance to break the student apathy.

Administration just didn't feel like getting off its collective posterior to organize such a large event — one that was suggested, I might add, in an effort to promote campus unity and familial togetherness.

Another really classic example of our student "laziness" was this Labor Day's pig roast. Seemed like a smooth success, didn't it? Too bad none of you saw what happened the day before — when the students left in charge went to use the pig roaster and found it void of the spit and three parts essential to the proper functioning of the roaster. Too bad you didn't see how much trouble those students had getting all the materials they needed to prep the pigs. Furthermore, the entire roast was almost a complete flop because at 4 p.m. the day before, there was no roaster to use and all members of the administration involved in the roast had left town for the weekend. Each pig had to roast eight hours. With a total of three pigs to roast and no roaster 24 hours before the event, it kind of makes it tough to get them all done on time, doesn't it?

Good thing these students knew how to keep things going on a wing and a prayer, or you wouldn't have had dinner on Labor Day, huh. I ask you: who, in this case, was the "lazy" group of people? Who was not too concerned with student morale or with getting a campus-wide event successfully off the ground?

Could it be the same group of people, lead by Father Charles Banet, who have repeatedly taken it upon themselves to negate the seniors' choices for commencement speakers without consulting the senior class?

Could it be the same group of people who almost canceled your bonfire tonight in honor of the Puma football team's undefeated record just because they weren't given two weeks notice? Funny thing they never made it known that they needed two weeks notice. Almost sounds like this body of people doesn't want anything new or exciting to happen here at St. Joe's. Every time students come up with an idea to boost student morale, the administration destroys it in a barrage of bureaucratic bullshit — "we need two week's notice; it's not possible; there's not enough time."

Sounds like a bunch of empty excuses from a group of even emptier people who want nothing to do with community progress or a better quality of life here at St. Joe's. If the administration is finding so many ways to shoot down new student ideas, that must mean they just don't want to bother with them. Sort of sounds like "administrative apathy" doesn't it?

Cable Situation Clarified

Cable television on the St. Joseph's College campus recently appears to have become a major concern to both students and college administration. However, in actuality, the cable situation in regards to cost, control, and overall clarity of the reception has been troubling the SJC community at least for the last three years. As a result, changes have been made and they are continuing to be made in order that poor cable reception may become a thing of the past.

One of the major changes deals with who controls the cable system. In past years, the Student Association, under the direction of elected student officers, was in charge of the operation and payment, through SA funds, of the cable system on campus. This year, however, as a result of a mandate by the Board of Trustees, the control of the cable has been turned over to the college — more specifically to Student Affairs, directed by Bill Maniscalco.

Another major change closely related to the change in authority of the cable is the complete rewiring of the cable system on campus. The college negotiated with Rensselaer Cable Company and on August 4 came to an agreement for a plan that calls for the "complete rewiring from ground level to each resident hall with new cable." This came as a decision on the part of the college to discontinue the use of the satellite dish that was purchased three years ago by the Student Association.

According to Maniscalco, the reason for the changes is based on the "problems the Student Association has experienced over the last three or four years with providing quality cable to the campus. Therefore, the Trustees recommended that the college be responsible to guarantee quality reception for the students."

Much of the problem the Student Association experienced in regards to providing quality cable is directly related to the purchase of the satellite dish by the president of the SA three years ago. The idea behind this decision was that by purchasing their own distribution system generated by a satellite dish on campus, the SA would save on the rising cost of cable rental in town. However, the officers did not anticipate such problems as royalty fees and the impact of scrambling that would eventually take place. As a result, an excess of $26,000 that was committed to the project by the Student Association at that time is continuing to be paid by the current administration.

The in-operative satellite dish is not the only bill that must be paid, however. The changes being made on the cable system this year, including the installation of new wires in each dormitory as well as in Halleck Center, the replacement of amplifiers and underground cable, as well as annual royalty and maintenance fees will cost in excess of $25,000.

Who is responsible for paying for this? According to Maniscalco, the college will pay for all the new equipment. However, this does not include the royalty and maintenance fees.

According to Tom Stefaniak, president of the current Student Association, it is presently under negotiation whether or not the SA should still pay this portion of the cable. As he stated, the SA "has no control over the cable company in town or the negotiations with them for the operation of the cable as it is now — therefore — we ... should not have to pay it."

It is no question that both Maniscalco and Stefaniak see advantages in the recent changes that have been made in the cable system. Maniscalco stated simply, "We will have a signal." Because the maintenance of the system will be handled by an outside company he is confident that "students will know — that whatever program they wish to see they can turn to a particular channel and view it."

Stefaniak, on the other hand, feels the change in control of the cable will insure continuity. In teaching excellence," he added.

Many teachers come and go over the years; however some stay right where they are. Three teachers at Saint Joe have dedicated a total of 110 years to the school, Fr. Charles Rueve, C.P.P.S., Dr. Ralph Cappuccilli, and Professor Michael Davis.

September 9, 1946, 40 years ago, was Father Rueve's first day at St. Joe teaching math and religion and at that time there were about 250 students. For 25 years, he was in charge of trees on campus. Now there are 125 - 130 different kinds of trees amounting to 4,000 - 5,000 trees. He says that he even knows them by name: George, Charlie and Mary. He enjoys bridge, chess, checkers, pool, bowling and keeping bees.

Dr. Ralph Cappuccilli, is a communications professor. When he was first here the area was called speech. There was also the debate, drama and theatre which he was involved in for 35 years.

When he first taught here the college was a bit smaller. After the war, there were 700 - 750 students. The enrollment almost reached 1500 in the late 1950's and is now 900-1,000.

Dr. Cappuccilli loves teaching and seeing students "eyes light up." He also enjoys reading and public television.

A graduate of Kansas State University, arriving at St. Joe to teach in 1952, was professor Michael Davis. He is presently teaching geology, environmental science and Core I. Out of his six children, two are graduates of St. Joe. One of his sons is studying geology "with no influence" from dad.

Mr. Davis was involved in working to develop the gravel pit which is now known as Lake Banet.

What are some of the changes these teachers noted? In the late 50's and 60's, part of the campus was a grove of walnut trees and there was also a swamp which was eventually filled in.

When all three of these teachers arrived on campus, St. Joe was an all male school. Also, there are many new buildings: Halleck Center, Gallagher, Halas, Justin and Noll. That land was farm land and a horse barn.

Thirty years ago, there were about 70 priests and five to six laymen. Now, it is the opposite.

The number of programs in business, computers, medical technology and radio and television have increased the number of majors to 28.

Fr. Rueve sees the biggest change in St. Joe in a spiritual sense; the fact that most of the faculty consists of laymen.

Dr. Cappuccilli feels St. Joe is an outstanding competitive school with significant areas of study. There has been some updating and employing of competent young faculty members. His thoughts on the Core program are "I feel that has broadened the horizons of our kids in a humanistic way in their lives and careers."

Mr. Davis thinks St. Joe has great potential, but has lost some things in the areas of philosophy and science. Although, the general education, computer and reinstitution of the journalism programs are highlighted in the college's strong points.

Open Auditions

Tuesday, September 23, 1986

in the

for a yet-to-be named situation comedy television program to be taped and aired on St. Joseph's own cable channel!

The comedy is based on situations that occur at an expensive, private college.

Roles to be cast:

ALEXANDRIA FORSYTHE - a rich first-year college student

STEVE - a stereotypical athlete who rooms with Dave

DAVE - a hard-working, down-to-earth first-year college student

BUFFY BEMUS - a rich snob who is Alexandria's friend

VAL - a campus sexpot

PETER - studious "nerd"-type, also roommate with Dave and Steve

MARVIN A. DENSMORE - absent-minded professor

TAKE A CHANCE AT STARDOM AND AUDITION !!

The only qualifications you need are enthusiasm and just a little talent. Everyone is welcome to audition; materials will be provided for you. This is a cold reading: Everyone will have the same amount of time to prepare.

Remember, be there - this could be the beginning of something big!!!

Flashback Into The Past ...

Indian School Modernized for Student Use

A five minute walk from the cluster of buildings which is Collegeville, through a picturesque avenue of gnarled oaks and hickories, stands a square, three - story brick building with a history. Dating back to 1877 when the site was purchased, it is a monument to the charity of one whose name it shall in future bear. Catherine Drexel, a pious millionaire's daughter, then gave the Catholic Indian Bureau in Washington the money necessary to buy 420 acres of land on which, during the following year, the structure was erected.

For eight years thereafter priests of the Precious Blood Community brought from the reservations redskinned natives to teach them the common trades and enlighten them on the truths of religion. Then the project had to be abandoned for financial reasons over which there was no control.

The project gave way to another — journalism. The same sons of Blessed Gaspar began the publication of two magazines — one in English, the other in German — each having for its purpose the spread of the devotion to the Precious Blood and to the Poor Souls in Purgatory.

From 1896 to 1922 presses hummed, folders snapped, presses hummed groaningly, and the space for the enterprise became too cramped. The printing establishment was transferred to the Precious Blood Motherhouse in Ohio.

Since then, until July last the grand old building has stood occupantless — a shell without a kernel, but anything but an acorn shell. Its constructors had "builted worthier than they knew," for when the work of renovation was begun the stitchers clicked. Gradually the building was found to be as solid as when the bright tile roof had been laid forty-nine years ago. Standing on a bed of lime stone without a basement it is as firm as the rock of Gibraltar. Only the interior had to be repaired.

Necessity is the mother not only of invention but of change and progress. Cramped living quarters on the campus, both for students and faculty, made necessary this very progressive undertaking. Completely modernized, the structure has ample room for eighty students and three professors. It has its own chapel. A six inch main 1800 feet long furnishes the water supply from the college system. There is, however, a single unit heating plant installed.

In future, Drexel Hall will be the comfortable home of seniors, and until their number increases too much, of upperclassmen.

Seifert Is Newest Dorm On Campus

Rooms of the first floor of new Seifert Hall will be ready, at the time of the school opening, for occupancy by approximately seventy - five students, according to Rev. Henry Lucks, Dean of Studies.

Permanent occupation of the new residence hall will not take place until workmen have completed the structure entirely. When complete, the Georgian style hall of variegated red brick and Bedford limestone trimmings, will have rooms for 150 students.

BEGAN JUNE 21

Workmen under the supervision of the General Construction Company of Fort Wayne, began digging the foundation on June 21. The building, 190 feet in length with wings on each end extending 36 feet, rose steadily from then on. Work yet to be done is almost entirely on the interior.

The exact date of completion and of the dedication ceremonies is still uncertain. It is rumored that a Sunday late in October will be selected as ceremonial day.

Raleigh Club Promises Lively Sessions in Fall Initiations

by Charles Bisig

Not long hence the tremendous crowd of freshmen who rolled through the great stone gates into Saint Joseph's College on September 12 will be greeted in the most cordial but entirely unsympathetic manner by the members of the Raleigh Club. All old members have deemed this both advisable and appropriate because on the day of the freshies' arrival most of the club members were not as yet prepared to greet the freshmen in a way benefitting their position. But now with the addition of time, planning and organizing, all have agreed that by October 1, matters pertaining to the initiation ceremonies will have been thoroughly perfected.

Virgil Moegling and Pete Casper, who will be in charge of the proceedings, have gone to considerable trouble in outlining an extensive program. The Raleigh Club members have even gone so far as to set aside the first twelve days of October from their social calendars in order to devote this time to extending a warm and hearty welcome to the yearlings. The moderator, Father Zanolar, has granted unlimited powers so that no glamor be taken away from the occasion. Everything is in readiness, and it appears as though the freshmen shall soon encounter an experience which will not soon be forgotten.

You will be smoking only a corn-cob pipe during these twelve days, and you will be humiliated even though physical extremes will be omitted. Think of your prestige, yearlings, when the initiation is past, and you are a full-fledged member of the Raleigh Club.

Increase Noticed Despite Draft Law

As other institutions of learning throughout the country bemoan the fact that total enrollment figures have dropped to an amazingly low level, St. Joe's now boasts of a student body larger than that of any previous year.

Conditions brought about by the National Defense Program have been blamed for the alarmingly few students attending institutions of higher learning. The draft, on one hand, has been responsible for many of the upper classmen not returning. On the other hand, promise of high wages in defense work induced many to abandon education.

St. Joe did lose a number of upper classmen but made up for the loss in freshmen representation. The total enrollment in the college as tabulated at present is 364. Of this number 39 are religious students. In the high school department 102 boys are enrolled. This number includes the 26 senior religious.

As Architect Predicts Field House

Designed to be 225 feet long and 120 wide, the field house will stand thirty-six feet high at the mid-point. The ceiling inside will be free from posts, trusses, or any other obstruction. The building will be constructed with a view toward further expansion within the shell.

Newest House In Collegeville

Here is how the architect predicts the finished product of Seifert Hall. Located just north of the power house, the new residence building is 190 feet long with wings extending forward 36 feet on each end. First floor is ready for occupancy this week. The Hall is named for the Rev. Augustine Seifert, C. P. S., deceased founder of St. Joe. Seifert Hall will house 150 students.

Drexel Hall, now abandoned, at one time was able to house up to 80 students and three professors.

Slightly Off Campus

THE BEST ANNUAL COLLEGE PARTIES IN AMERICA, says the latest issue of Campus Voice magazine, are at Iowa State, Wisconsin, Alaska, Connecticut, Colorado, Arizona, Iowa, Idaho, New Mexico, Wyoming, Hartford, Cal State-Chico, Northwestern, Michigan State, Washington State, Carnegie Mellon, Plymouth State, and the Rhode Island School of Design.

THREE CLEMSON STUDENTS WERE hurt when their homemade noise cannon, meant to accompany a campus midnight showing of the Rocky Horror Picture Show, exploded unexpectedly.

OHIO STATE REINSTATED BRIAN SATING, the student it fired as a parking booth employee because he wears his hair in a bright red mohawk, after Sating agreed to cover his head with a hat while on the job.

MINNESOTA HAS HIRED A COLLECTION AGENCY to help it recover tuition payments owed it since 1980.

U. KENTUCKY OFFICIALS SAY THEY'RE SURPRISED to find a new law banning public drinking may mean tailgating parties will be illegal this fall. Legislator Walter Blevins, who sponsored the law and says he goes to tailgate parties himself, now promises to introduce an amendment to the statute.

UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA FOOTBALL fans are now sporting "thegator shnozz," a $4 plastic alligator-esque nose - green and complete with teeth - that attaches to students' priceless, real-life noses.

A CAMPUS SWIMMING POOL AT the University of Arizona is mysteriously losing about one inch of water per hour. Hogan Looking For Third Win Against Bemidji State Saturday

Head football coach Bill Reagan is looking at what appears to be the beginning of a promising year. After playing two games, the Pumas remain undefeated. In their first match against Muskingum College, the Pumas won 27-26. The following week, they shut out Illinois Benedictine 35-0. "We'll have a real good test for ourselves this weekend," Reagan said about the upcoming game against Bemidji State University.

Reagan does not pinpoint the success of the team, nor does he attribute it to one or two players. He notes that the attitude of the players this year has helped tremendously. He added, "We're 2-0 so the attitude should be great any way. The reason we're 2-0 is because the great attitude we've had in the kids so far. They look like they're pulling together."

Three freshmen start for the Pumas this season. They are Scott Hughes at offensive right guard, Morgan Murphy at offensive tackle and Pat Kucherick at nose guard. Phil Miller doesn't officially start every game for the Pumas, but Reagan considers him a starter because he plays quite a bit for a freshman.

Key offensive starters for the Pumas include veterans Pat Leonard, Damon Randolph, Ron Peters, Rory Johnson and Angelo Oliva. "We don't have too many veterans on the offensive line, so we did some new things this year by moving some people around," Reagan commented. Senior Scott Brinkman has played tackle for three years; however, this year he is playing offense.

Senior Tony Hoop also has a new position this year. In the past he played defensive end. Now he will be playing defensive tackle, which Reagan thinks is a tough thing to do. Other returning defensivemen are Daryl Spinell, Mike Van Santen, Brian Hill, Larry Kissinger, Carlo Panici, James Toombs and Joe Helmer.

One major difference this year occurred in the coaching staff, Reagan said. Last year Jim Blake served as offensive coordinator, Randy Bates was linebacker coordinator, Steve Piha was the defensive line coach, and Bill Reagan served as defensive coordinator. This year Reagan and Blake switched positions as coordinators; therefore fans can expect to see some different things done with the offense and defense this year.

This Saturday, the Pumas face Bemidji State at 1:30. Bemidji state is ranked in the top 20 in Division I NAIA football. Reagan believes this game will be good practice for the team. "The challenge for us is to stop them defensively. If we can do that, we can stay in the ballgame," he added.

One thing the coaching staff has been working on this week is the consistency of the defense, to prevent giving up big yardage on plays.

Reagan concluded, "Our goal right now is to be 3-0, that's it, period. I'm really looking forward to number three."

Last year's women's tennis team went undefeated with a record of 14 - 0, giving coach John Barrientos reason to be optimistic about the upcoming season. So far the Pumas are 1 - 0 because three of their first four matches were cancelled. They beat IP - Ft. Wayne by a score of 8 - 1.

Coach Barrientos would like another 14-0 season, but outside factors may prevent this from happening. The Pumas have a tough schedule, playing one of the top twenty teams in Division III, St. Mary's College of Notre Dame, as well as Depauw University, one of the top twenty teams in the second division.

The Pumas also lost their No. 2 player, Karen Seferlin, who graduated last year. However, returning to the team this year are Judy Stewart and Debbie Freche who have each won conference titles. Katie De Santis, who went undefeated last year, is also returning. Other players include Karen Kolesiak and Shellee Fuquay.

As far as recruitment went this year, Coach Barrientos said, "The recruiting did not go as well as I had hoped." There will be one freshman, however, who will play at the No. 4 slot for the team. According to Barrientos all she lacks is experience.

New Coach Focuses on Offensive Skills

Our St. Joe soccer team has gained both maturity and experience throughout its past six years as being recognized as a varsity sport. "I must admit," began senior and co-captain Barclay Dwight, "that this is the most determined and organized soccer team I have been a part of here at St. Joe."

Mike Minielli, a 1986 graduate of the school, has accepted responsibility as this season's coach. When questioned whether or not his recent participation has either helped or hindered his position as coach, he responded, "It's actually been a great help! I know all the returning players and, more importantly, their capabilities. I find that this saves me valuable time which, in turn, is directed towards greater areas of importance."

The soccer team arrived on campus August 16 to begin practice. Their first week of practice focused on endurance training — long distance runs, sprints and calisthenics. Since then, they have worked in their ball-handling skills and team plays.

Led by captains Barclay Dwight, Pablo Libra, and Chris Murphy, the team had their first opportunity to exhibit their talents on September 6, against the University of Indianapolis. By the end of the first 45 half, Indianapolis led St. Joe 1-0. With minutes left in the game, Indianapolis scored off a direct kick. The game ended 2-0 in favor of Indianapolis.

St. Joe's second game was played on September 9 against Grace college. Grace controlled the ball to their advantage throughout critical times of the game. St. Joe had several opportunities to score; however, failure to convert these opportunities invited Grace to the same. By the end of the first half, Grace led the Pumas 1-0, and by the end of the game held St. Joe scoreless with a final score of 3-0. Coach Minnielli lauded the performances of Sean Hanlon, Kevin Geleott, George Arvanitis, Larry Schmidt, and goalie Joe Cook, declaring their consistency as reliable team players. He continued, though, that the offense needs more work on controlling and passing the ball.

Despite final scores of the first two games. Pablo Libra held a positive attitude for his team, "Overall I am happy with the team's performance. We proved that we have skill and experience but have yet to utilize them to their fullest."

Austin, Van Houten Lead Cross Country To Victories

This season's women's and men's cross country teams have put themselves into 14 - 0 and 5 - 10 records. According to head coach Dave Smith, it looks as if the girls can easily take the Little State meet, the conference and possibly regionals.

Top runner for the Pumas includes, on the men's team, Dan Van Houten. Phil Sperry and Jim Potts have also been doing well this season, Smith noted. He added Bill Massoels has improved a great deal early this season.

For the girls, sophomore Karen Austin is Smith's number one runner. "She has an excellent chance at winning the conference, regionals, Little State, and nationals in the 5,000 meter race," he commented. Because she is a potential All-American, Smith said they have higher expectations for her and they treat her differently.

Other top runners for the women include juniors Jackie

Regnier and Theresa Klingenberg.

Andy Hahn is the only freshman on the men's team, however, the women have three freshmen: Lisa Bishop, Heidi Owens and Tammy Ryan.

Smith believes the girls are capable of winning every meet they participate in. They have already won the Grace and Butler Invitationals, but Smith is trying to keep those victories low key.

The men are striving to come in the top half of every invitational. Their goal is to have a winning season, which has only happened once in the eleven years of the sport. With their record of 15-10, they have a pretty good chance.

Injuries play a large part of running, however, this year no one has been severely injured. Smith said they have their share of aches, pains, sore muscles, and blisters, but nothing major yet.

The team is focusing on trying to stay healthy. At this time of year Smith states this can be very hard to do. Practicing twice a day helps, Smith believes.

Keeping from doing too much also cuts down on sickness.

Practices are arranged on a hard - easy system. One day, they train hard and the next day they take it easy. In conclusion Smith says, "This is the best group we've had so far in cross country."

Netters Pull Out Victory In 4 Games

Tuesday night, the Puma volleyball team defeated Valparaiso in four games, 16 - 4; 13 - 15; 15 - 12; 15 - 11, to put their record 2 - 3. Head coach Linda Taulman notes good performances from Tracy Payne, Lauri Kiel, and Stephanie Williams.

"Tracy's hitting percentage was up 100 percent," she continued, "Lauri did a fine job setting and Stephanie had several serve receptions."

Last weekend the girls played in the Ft. Wayne Invitational and went 0 - 3. They faced Wright State, Wayne State and Grand Valley, all of which will be ranked in the top 15 in the nation in Division II ball. Taulman told the girls not to be discouraged though, "We played against the very best competition we'll see all season. Hopefully we learned something from them."

This year's team is made up mostly of freshmen and sophomores. Diane Allbritten is the only returning senior on the team this year. Maureen Field is the only junior.

Taulman's focus right now is on watching the players' diets and activities. This is done in order to prevent the girls from putting on extra weight and reducing their jumping abilities. One other major point of attention is correcting the many serving errors the girls have made in the past few games. Taulman explains, "Our serving errors have been more that we can accept."

Right now the team is doing well because no one has been injured. Taulman just hopes they can stay injury - free most if not all of the season.

The goal the girls are striving for is to be one of two teams from the northern division to make it to the GLVC conference tournament. In order to do so, they must beat either Lewis University or IP - Ft. Wayne.

Taulman is very optimistic about the rest of the season. Before concluding the interview, Taulman thanked all the fans who have come out and given the girls support so far this season. She added, "We appreciate the support, and encourage more people to come out and watch us."
